STATE NEWS

Cumberland.

James Appleby, a boy of twelve years old, the son of James Appleby, living on Chestnut street, Portland, has been missing from home since three o'clock Thursday afternoon. His mother is almost crazy with anxiety about him.

For the past month the total value of imports at Portland was $158,78 for [illegible] export $7,950 domestic exports $1,042. There were two and a half million feet of lumber exported, and eight American and [illegible] foreign vessels [illegible].

The new Union station at Portland is nearly finished. The windows have been set, the ticket office is all ready, the frescoing done and the ceiling nearly so. The electric wires have gone in. The top of the tower is all of the building to be built. Mr. Staples is grading Congress street on the west and St. John street on the north.

Messrs. Charles Leavitt & Co. of Portland have just sold their bark Newsboy to the Boston Towboat Company for conversion into a coal barge. The company has a capital of $40,000 and owns a fleet of nearly thirty barges and being built. [illegible]

Miss Mary Jane Webb left her home at South Windham Wednesday to visit friends in a neighboring village, and not returning, a search was instituted, when it was learned that she did not visit the place as expected. Her age is fifty years. She is of medium height, has dark hair, black eyes, and when last seen she wore a dark figured dress and shawl. Any information with regard to the whereabouts of the lady will be gratefully received at Stephen H. Webb's, South Windham.

A sad [illegible] of South Portland began the summer fishing season Friday with his father, using a small boat and fishing on [illegible]. The result [illegible] fishing Mr. J. W. [illegible] paid the boy $18, which [illegible] will be considered good wages for one day's work. There were landed by the boats Friday 12,000 pounds of fish [illegible] the Cape. The Cape fishing promises to be very good this season. Besides these arrivals the schooner [illegible] landed 10,500 pounds, Carrie Allen 10,000, Josie May 7,000, Moses B. Tinscott 10,000, Julietta 6,000 and the Goldsmith Maid 5,000.

Kennebec.

At a meeting of the Augusta Park Association Friday evening it was voted to increase the capital stock of the association to $10,000. It was also voted to celebrate the 4th of July on the ground of the association, with horse trotting and a base ball match. Other attractions will be announced in due time. It is contemplated to have a county fair in September.

Some twenty years ago, says an Augusta despatch, many Maine men invested heavily in a California gold mine. Among them were two well known Gardiner gentlemen, one of whom bought 6,500 shares of the stock at the par value. The mine did not prove paying one and the bottom dropped out of the stock so that it was worth but fifty cents on a dollar. Recently, however, a rich vein of ore was discovered and the mine has been paying $3,000 a month above expenses. One of the Gardiner stock owners is now in California looking after the mine. It is known as the Gover mine.

Architect J. C. Stevens, of Portland, has just completed plans for the new Baptist church in Gardiner. The church is to be erected on what is known as the Bishop [illegible] lot near the top of the hill on Brunswick street. In general effect the church is a building in the modern Gothic style with broad medium pitched roof and square high pointed tower on one side near the end. It has two principal entrances, the main one through the tower and a pastor's entrance into the chancel. The tower has an open belfry and a small projecting balcony in front. An ornamental ventilating dome rising from the center of the roof adds to the beauty of the building's outline. The edifice will occupy on the ground 2x5 feet and will seat three hundred persons. The cost of the building is not expected to exceed $7,000.

Lincoln.

The guide wire of the Richmond Dresden ferry across the Kennebec has been carried away by the freshet, causing some delay in crossing. It will be replaced as soon as the freshet subsides.

The Dresden middle bridge across Eastern river is having a vacation. One of the abutments had settled out of line, rendering some of the stringers insecure, and last Wednesday as schooner Ira D. Sturgis was passing down river the tide forced her against the bridge, carrying away the draw. Considerable repairs are now in order. The town of Dresden has three bridges across that river, the lower one having been just rebuilt at a cost of $8,000.

Oxford.

The Dixfield Spool and Box Manufacturing Company lately turned a cord of logs into spool wood in just twenty two minutes.

Sagadahoc.

Mr. Charles I. White, Town Clerk of Topsham, has copied and arranged systematically all the publishments and marriages contained in the town records from the date of its incorporation up to the present time. Mr. White has served as town clerk twenty five years, and thus has been able to bring to the work the experience derived by faithful service.

Somerset.

The Reporter thinks the action of the town, on Monday, in passing over the article in the warrant proposing the appropriation of $5,000 for a soldiers' and sailors' memorial for Skowhegan, is not conclusive.

Washington.

Columbia Falls Lumber Company started up their mills last week, and are running on full time. They are employing a large number of men and teams, they are interested in building a vessel here this season. The indications are that business will be good here this season, and all who wish for employment can get it at good wages.

A charter has been granted to John D. Chipman, Gilbert W. Ganong, John Black, Henry E. Hill and William F. Todd, of St. Stephen, and William Todd and Albert E. Neill, of Calais, incorporating them as a company for the purpose of propagation and protection of fish and game, by the name of the Inglewood Fish and Game Corporation, with a total capital of $20,000, divided into four hundred shares of $50 each.

York.

Dr. Edward S. Dunster, an eminent medical authority and instructor in [that] science, died of pneumonia at Ann Arbor, Mich., May 3d. He was born in Springvale, Sept. 2, 1834, and was graduated at Harvard College, class of 1855, being a classmate of Gov. Robinson, Prof. Greenough, of Harvard and Hon. Jeremiah Smith. He received his degree of M. D. from the Medical College of New York.

Short Cuts

Dr. Gatling has patented a new gun metal composed of steel and aluminum and said to be of remarkable strength.

Associate Justice Stanley Matthews has accepted an invitation to deliver the oration at commencement exercises of the Yale Law School in June.

Congressman Hitt of Illinois, who is one of the richest representatives in Washington, is an expert [illegible], and [illegible] one time a clerk of one of the Senate committees.

The will of Mrs. Jarius S. Watern of Sycamore, Ill., just probated, sets apart her residence and sixty acres of land for a school for girls, and provides a fund amounting to $8,000 for its maintenance.

Miss Ethel Colbert [illegible] elected life [illegible] of the [illegible] school reform. She has established twenty-two libraries [illegible] different States and found employment for 6,000 convicts.

William Henry Bishop has spent part of [illegible] with the R [illegible] Chicago studying [illegible] of [illegible] cities and [illegible] Superior will [illegible] He [illegible] has [illegible] first August.

Miss [illegible] suddenly summoned from the M [illegible] Conference [illegible] to her home in Evanston, Ill., last Saturday, on account of the serious illness of her mother. Her friends [illegible] deeply in her anxiety [illegible].

Mr. [illegible] is very busy meeting [illegible] engagements in Southern California. Miss Field [illegible] of Mr. [illegible] and Mrs. Miles [illegible] Los Angeles [illegible] Miss Field has [illegible] of late.

Valdimir, the Greek Catholic Bishop of Alaska and the Aleutian Island [illegible] the [illegible] which is just [illegible]. He is tall, straight [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible].

A total [illegible] of Washington Thursday [illegible] [illegible] Senator [illegible] of New Haven [illegible] Winthrop [illegible] Merrill [illegible].

Miss [illegible] has sailed for Europe [illegible] to Bad [illegible] her two [illegible] whom she will take to [illegible] Bologna. In August she will go to Germany to witness the festival performance of Tristan and Die Meistersinger in Bayreuth.

Mr. Edwin Booth, who has been elected president of the recently organized Players' Club, has offered to present it with a clubhouse in Gramercy park. One of the objects of the club is to form a dramatic library and make a collection of valuable dramatic pictures which shall illustrate the history of the stage, particularly in this country.

Mrs. Dr. Tozier, who was buried last Sunday in New York, will be regarded as a pioneer in the successful practice of medicine by female in the United States. Singularly gifted for the healing profession and sincerely devoted to its pursuit without sensation or pride, the deceased lady undoubtedly accomplished a vast deal of good, especially for the afflicted of her own sex.

Ferdinand Gumbert, one of the most popular of German composers, celebrated on the 21st of April his seventieth birthday. He was born and educated in Berlin and at the age of twenty-one went on the stage, but since 1842 has devoted himself exclusively to the composition of Lieder and Singspiele. Of the former, "Mein Lied," "Zwei Augen" and many others are sung wherever German is spoken. Gumbert has also adapted a number of French operas by Massé, Gounod, Delibes, Massenet [illegible] for the German stage.

Mr. [illegible], the London play writer, produces [illegible] has [illegible] prolonged and laborious thought. When he has settled the story itself in his mind he goes to work upon the character, building them up in thought before he allows them to say a word upon paper. This process lasts sometimes for months, but when the dramatist at length sits down to his desk, the play has already a complete imaginative existence from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The actual writing Mr. Pinero accomplishes as a rule with extraordinary rapidity, hardly putting the pen from his hand until it is finished.

Greatness has its annoyances. Melville W. Fuller, the President's nominee for Chief-Justice, has a symmetrical and ornamental mustache. It is a tradition that the Justices of the Supreme Court should keep their upper lips free from hirsute adornment. Justice Matthews has defied this tradition, but it is generally believed that a Chief-Justice should not offend the legendary customs which pertain to his office. In an interview on this important subject Mr. Fuller was asked if he intended to sacrifice his mustache under the Juggernaut of precedent. "It's the practice," he said, "but I guess not."

"Now Allah be praised, here are old friends," said Representative S. S. Cox as he caught sight of P. T. Barnum's Arabs on Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, Wednesday morning. Representative Amos Cummings, who was with him, was sceptical, and said the Orientals were Georgetown darkies and that he had seen them fishing off a wharf last Sunday. Mr. Cox thereupon put Barnum's attractions to the test. "Salaam Aleikoum!" he shouted, with a how-d'ye-do inflection in his voice. The dusky Arabs started in surprise, and with one accord cried out "Alaikoum Salaam!" The cynical Cummings was overwhelmed with remorse. He certainly owes Mr. Barnum an apology.

The Magazines.

The May number of THE CENTURY begins a new volume. The opening article is the first paper of the series by George Kennan, illustrated by G. A. Frost and Henry Sandham, in which is to be recorded the results of The Century Expedition into Siberia and examination of the exile system. The frontispiece of this number is a touching scene at the Siberian boundary post. The illustrations are numerous, and there is a full-page map of the route pursued by the travelers on their extraordinary journey. Theodore Roosevelt, in his series of Ranch articles, describes (and Remington illustrates) his adventurous and amusing pursuit and capture of three boat thieves, a short account of which appeared not long ago in the newspapers.

Two brief papers appeal especially to the soldier audience, but are of general interest as well. The first deals with "The chances of being hit in battle," being a study of regimental losses in the Civil War. The second describes the famous "Locomotive Chase in Georgia," one of the most thrilling incidents of the war.

The Lincoln Life deals especially with the efforts made to keep the Border States from secession and Mr. Lincoln's part not only in this historical setting but also as a character of it. Dr. Eggleston's "Western [illegible]" novel "The Graysons," which is now approaching its most interesting point.

Dr. Eggleston, in the May Century, publishes also an important chapter on his colonial series, namely, his original account of The Church of England in the Colonies, with a number of illustrations of old churches, etc., and a portrait of Bishop Berkeley.

A two part story by Henry James, "The Liar," begins in this number, and there is a complete story by Edward Bellamy, entitled "A Love Story Reversed."

Matthew Arnold's recent [illegible] Milton is here printed for the first time. There is an engraving of Lambert's portrait of the Poet [illegible] personality by the [illegible] Lyman Professor [illegible] pictures by [illegible] with [illegible] including [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] and Mr. Charles [illegible] Bird Music.

The poetry of the number includes four brief pieces by [illegible], a poem by Riley, illustrated by Kemble, etc.

The departments [illegible] fully filled.

In the May number of St. Nicholas, Thomas Nelson Page begins "Two Little Confederates," a serial story of southern boy life during the war, and full of amusing and stirring incidents. Mrs. Spofford's charming story "The [illegible]," which will delight the young, and old; Mr. [illegible] Swett contributes the [illegible] and seasonable sketch "A Moving Story." An account of Girard College, by Alice Maude Fenn, fully illustrated by Harry Fenn, gives an interesting sketch of the founder, and a clear idea of life at the college. John Burroughs contributes "[illegible]." Celia Thaxter has [illegible] story of the experiment [illegible] entitled "Madame Arachne," and it is finely illustrated by A. B. Davies. [illegible] tells us how a little boy [illegible] fifty years ago [illegible] illustrations by H. W. Hall.

There are also an exciting narrative of "An Adventure with a Man-Eater," by Walter Campbell, strongly illustrated by H. H. Schell; two articles on "Little Lord Fauntleroy," with a portrait of the first Lord Fauntleroy, Mary Lang, and telling of the [illegible] [illegible] Price [illegible] treats of [illegible] of a person [illegible] ship board.

John Preston True's serial "Drill" is continued, and he also shows to the readers of St. Nicholas some letters by the late Louisa Alcott giving "The Advice of Miss Alcott to the author when he was a young writer."

A sketch of A. C. Less [illegible] Phonillo [illegible] clever [illegible] "[illegible]" and Poverty, a lovely story for Very Little Folks. "Fuel in the Pulpit," and the delightfully funny "Boating by a Very Young Contributor." The "Plain [illegible]" complete the prose of the number.

The verse is equally attractive. Bessie Chandler contributes "The Little Moon," which Birch illustrates; Margaret Johnson writes "The Duke's Jest," for which Rose McDermott has drawn the humorous pictures.

"Mother I Go" by Mary B. Bruce is a poetical little fancy and "Prince Olega's Destiny" (from the Russian of Pushkin) by Henry Tyrrell is a ballad of much power, fittingly interpreted by Birch's pictures.

"To My Boy—on Decoration Day," by Alice Wellington Rollins; "By Proxy," [illegible] by A. R. Wells, with Birch's illustrations; "Lady Daffodil," by Mary J. Sharpe; "May Day," by Emma Opper, with L. Opper's amusing pictures, another of the Housekeeping Songs; "One Little Shoe," by Amy E. Blanchard, and other verses, pictures and jingles all demand more than the slight notice it is possible to give them here.

Agricultural.

Rules for Planting Trees.

The following rules are self-evident to most tree planters who, for want of attention, break some of them, and reminders are therefore often useful.

1. A valuable sort is worth more than merely a handsome tree.

2. Good healthy bracing roots are of more importance than a symmetrical top.

3. The roots should be long and strong enough, and the top made light enough to obviate any staking.

4. If the roots of a tree are frozen and then thawed out of the ground or in contact with the air, the tree will be killed.

5. If frozen roots are thawed in compactly pressed mellow earth the tree may be made to live.

6. Manure should never be placed in contact with the roots when setting out a tree, but used for mulch or top dressing.

7. Trees should always be set about as deep as they stood in the nursery, or two or three inches deeper to allow for the settling of the earth.

8. Spread out the roots nearly equally on all sides so as to brace the tree well.

9. Avoid particularly any small cavity next the roots, but fill compactly against them on all sides with fine, mellow earth.

10. A small, thrifty tree with copious roots when set out will be a good bearing tree sooner than a large one with mutilated roots.

11. Watering in dry weather crusts the surface and does not reach the roots.

12. Young trees should not be set in a grass lot or among any crops of sowed grain, but the whole earth kept clean and mellow.

13. Shrivelled trees, before planting, may be made plump by covering for several days, compactly, with moist, mellow earth.

14. If newly set ones suffer from drought, mulch the ground about them, and frequently sprinkle or shower the stems and branches.

15. The roots extend as far from the tree as its entire height, clean and mellow cultivation should therefore cover a surface twice as wide as its height.

16. As a general rule, cultivation should be continued for six, eight or ten years from planting, after which closely grazed or lawn mowed grass may be permitted, with frequent top-dressing.

17. The amount of manuring or top-dressing must vary with the vigor of the trees; young trees should grow two or three feet yearly; and bearing one foot or more.

18. Keep an eye to the future shape of the tree, and timely remove small, needless, crossing or crooked limbs. This will obviate heavy pruning in after years.

19. Pruning when dormant tends to invigor[ate] [illegible] but if done when growing or in [illegible], it checks growth, and therefore a feeble tree should never be pruned after growth commences in the spring. But healthy strong growers may be lightly pruned at either season.

The greatest grain fleet that ever left Chicago at the opening of navigation began starting on Sunday night. It comprises ninety-six vessels and the cargoes aggregate 4,112,000 bushels of grain.

A Chicago report shows very poor wheat prospects, which in some localities are growing worse daily. Favorable weather might make half a crop. The shortage of wheat in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, according to reliable reports, is 1,000,000 bushels.

In New York it is stated that one house will consign 1,000 to 1,500 boxes of cheese to England this week and another house will forward some 2,000 boxes. All this cheese is old product, and the movement helps to clean up the market to make room for the increasing supply of new [illegible].

For the [illegible] and gooseberry [illegible] worms [illegible] as soon as the leaves begin to put out. They can be found at first on the under side of the leaves, and a very little hellebore powdered and sifted on them will save subsequent trouble. If the fruit grower waits until they begin their ravages he cannot destroy them without subjecting his currant bushes to damage that [illegible] thought [illegible] prevent.

It will be remembered that it was the common impression in the South before the war that if slavery were abolished not a bale of cotton would be raised as the negro would not work. It is curious to note the progress of events at the present time. Prior to the war the United States produced about 4,000,000 bales of cotton, while since the abolition of slavery about 7,000,000 bales of cotton have been produced [illegible] year.

What is claimed to be the most profitable orange tree in California is owned by Charles Fish at Marysville. It is thirty years old and has borne a high [illegible] 1,000 oranges [illegible] single season [illegible] its boughs at least 2,000.

WHY BAKING POWDERS ARE BEST.

[From the H. E's Journal of Health.]

Baking powders properly compounded, and containing pure cream of tartar, are far more convenient than yeast, and bread [illegible] pastry made with them are just as wholesome, and far more palatable.

We are in entire sympathy with the manufacturers of the Royal Baking Powder—who commenced an vigorously on battling the war against the use of adulterated baking powders.

But for committing ourselves, however, we made tests of a sufficient number of baking powders to satisfy ourselves that the substitution of alum for cream of tartar in their composition has not been over estimated, while a careful examination of the Royal Baking Powder confirms our belief that Dr. Mott, the Government Chemist, when he singled out and commended this powder for its wholesomeness, did it wholly in the interests of the public.

We do not hesitate to say that the Royal Baking Powder people deserve the gratitude of the community whom they are endeavoring to protect.

A WONDERFUL STORY.—THIRTEEN YEARS A SUFFERER, CURED WITH BELL'S SARSAPARILLA.

Woolwich, Me., March 29, '88.

I have been troubled with scrofula thirteen years. I have taken different kinds of sarsaparillas and blood purifiers, but only received temporary relief. Six months ago this terrible humor was spread from my ankle to my hip, and I had given up all hope of getting well. I was advised by my daughter to try Bell's Sarsaparilla. I have taken five bottles and can say that I have received more benefit from it than all the other medicines. The humor is all healed up and my health is greatly improved. I can highly recommend Bell's Sarsaparilla to all who are troubled with impure blood.

MRS. SARAH E. TAYLOR.

Superior to every other kind. Popular in price. Bell's Sarsaparilla is wonderful for all blood diseases. Only 50 cents per bottle. d&wlw my5

The universal use of them proves their merits. Hop Plasters, clean, safe, effective against pain. TTS&w

NEVER HEARD OF DAVY CROCKETT'S COON

That's queer! Well, it was like this. Col. Crockett was noted for his skill as a marksman. One day he leveled his gun at a raccoon in a tree, when the animal, knowing the Colonel's prowess, cried out "Hello there. Are you Davy Crockett? If you are I'll just come down, for I know I'm a gone coon." Just take a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and see how quickly your biliousness and indigestion will emulate the example of "Davy Crockett's coon," and "climb down." They are specifics for all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

CURE YOUR CATARRH OR GET $500.

For many years the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, who are thoroughly responsible, financially, as any one can easily ascertain by proper enquiry, have offered, in good faith through nearly every newspaper in the land, a standing reward of $500 for a case of nasal catarrh, no matter how bad, or of how long standing, which they cannot cure. The Remedy which is sold by druggists at only 50 cents is mild, soothing, cleansing, antiseptic and healing. d&wlw my8

"WHY DO I SUFFER SO

with headache and vertigo, doctor? I have a bad cough, too, and dull aches under the shoulder blades. I'm losing weight, and am bilious all the time." The courteous physician answers: "If you inquire what is the cause of all this mischief, it is a torpid liver. That organ, you are aware, is the largest gland in the body, and its office is to carry off the waste of the system. When it fails to do its proper work, the refuse of the body is re-absorbed and goes circulating round and round in the blood, poisoning, not nourishing, the tissues. But why you continue to suffer in this way I am at a loss to understand, since Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery would give prompt relief, and future immunity from such attacks."

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 8, 1887.
Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost every thing, but in vain, I finally heard of Ath-lo-pho-ros. After taking one bottle I found it to be all it was claimed to be, and after taking four bottles of Ath-lo-pho-ros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.

It is safe to say, however, that the denial will not find a place in the columns of the Post it being contrary to the rule of that paper to cor...rect a lie.

In view of the persistent attempt on the part of the Administration organs to show evidence of wavering in the Republican ranks of the West on the tariff question since the free trade message of the President, the following plank referring to the Democratic policy adopted with great enthusiasm in the Illinois State Convention is of especial interest:

Its proposed tariff legislation is a glaring subterfuge, and an attempt to destroy the American policy of protection to American industries and labor in the interest of foreign countries, which, if successful, must necessarily bring disaster upon the business of this country and tend to reduce the American rate of wages to the European standard.

The above is respectfully referred to the Administration organs which will hardly find in this emphatic arraignment of the Cleveland-Carlisle-Mills programme any indication of wavering on the part of the Republicans.

We find the following significant paragraph in Bridgeton News of last week:

The Bangor State Convention last week afforded Republicans an excellent opportunity to compare notes on the gubernatorial contest. Cleaves, Marble and Burleigh, were all there. The Burleigh men were rather more demonstrative than the friends of other candidates, but the Cleaves men seemed very confident, as it is understood that in case Marble finds he cannot be nominated he will endeavor to throw his strength in favor of Mr. Cleaves.

This would indicate that the friends of Mr. Cleaves do not think it at all probable that their candidate will have sufficient strength of his own in the convention to secure a nomination, but in case Mr. Burleigh fails on the first ballot they count on forming a combination with the supporters of Gov. Marble and thus capture the nomination. No one doubts that Mr. Burleigh is ahead in the contest to-day and with the same degree of enthusiasm continued until the convention meets he will probably go in on the first ballot, thus preventing any combination being made against him after the strength of the different candidates has been revealed.

Congressman Russell, of Mass., in the House Saturday charged that the Canadians come over the line to secure work on the American side and when asked what they came for had to admit that the wages are much higher on this side. Mr. Perkins, of Kansas, effectually cornered the free trade advocate from Massachusetts with the pertinent question whether he was in favor of legislation which would keep the Canadians from coming to this country. This was a poser and Mr. Russell evasively replied, "I have not said anything about that." That wages are higher here than in Canada is conceded by the free traders, and if the immigration of Canadian labor is an injury to our workingmen the Democratic House better remedy the evil instead of attempting to pass a bill that would subject them to a much greater evil of free importation which would at once bring wages down to the Canadian standard.

In the House Saturday Mr. Bynum, of Indiana, during the tariff debate with that disregard of facts characteristic of the free trade, alleged that the late President Garfield was a regular member of the Cobden Club. Mr. Boutelle asked him as a matter of candor and frankness if he was not perfectly well aware that President Garfield publicly and repeatedly repudiated any connection with that club, that the placing of his name on the list was a compliment paid him without his knowledge and that he unqualifiedly refused to become a member. Mr. Bynum challenged the proof of this assertion and Mr. Boutelle promptly agreed to produce it at once. Before the committee rose he was prepared with the proof demanded and so announced, but Mr. Mills moved that the committee rise, the time having expired, thus temporarily delaying the discomfiture of his free trade colleague. The gentlemen who are running the raid against the protective system will learn before the debate is concluded that their reckless manner of juggling with facts is a dangerous expedient.

In the course of his speech at the Lewiston Convention presenting the name of Congressman Dingly for renomination, Hon. T. R. Simonton, of Camden, said:

The spectacle now being witnessed in the State of Maine is not only unique but highly gratifying. Our members of Congress have so ably, so industriously and efficiently discharged the duties of their great offices on the important questions at issue in the country that they have no fear of their constituents or need to desert their posts of duty to come home to look after their own interests.

The unanimity with which in every case our members of the lower House of Congress have been and will be renominated for another term of office shows that their constituents are not ungrateful for their distinguished services in behalf of the great industries of agriculture, manufacture, shipping and fisheries on which the prosperity and happiness of our people so materially depend.

The Republicans of the several districts of Maine say to their Representatives "Well done." We ask of you further service. Were the terms our able, faithful, distinguished Senators expiring the people would with equal enthusiasm express their approval of their important services by unanimously returning them for further service. [Applause.]

In reply to the Tribune's argument that the Mugwumps supported Mr. Cleveland in 1884 because they then supposed him to be a reformer, and they will not support him in 1888 because they know he is not a reformer, the Philadelphia Telegraph says:

All this is a mistake. If they had not supposed Mr. Cleveland to be a civil-service reformer in 1884, they would have voted for him pretty nearly as numerously as they did, and for the, to them, satisfactory reason that they believed him to be a thoroughly honest man in his official life.

We have no desire to question Mr. Cleveland's official integrity from a Mugwump standpoint, but however easily they may be satisfied, the fact that even his most ardent supporters have been forced to admit in view of his record that he has violated in the most offensive manner his pledges to the people in order to please the spoilsmen, or, Democratic majority, shows honest independents how sadly they were taken in when they voted for Grover Cleveland thinking him to be other than the machine politician he has proved himself to be. Professional Mugwumps and free traders are for Cleveland in spite of his damaging course, but honest reformers long since learned their mistake and will not again be taken in this year.

The Commercial thinks this is going to be "the most one sided" contest in recent years and concludes that "the position which the two parties occupy on the great issues of the day add materially to this one sidedness." For once we are inclined to agree with our contemporary. President Cleveland is without doubt bound to be the nominee of his party and his record whether on the tariff, the fishery question or civil service reform is such as to make his defeat before the people practically certain in advance. His free trade message will necessarily form the platform of the party and neither New York, New Jersey or Connecticut can be carried on the Cleveland-Carlisle-Mills programme. Four years ago Mr. Randall was kept on the stump in these manufacturing States insisting that Mr. Cleveland was a protectionist, but that sort of thing will not go this year. Mr. Cleveland is a free trader and the men who work in the mills, mines, factories and on the farms are not going to vote for a President whose message to Congress was hailed with delight in England because it promised an entrance into our home market for the English manufacturer who has long had his hungry eyes turned in this direction. The issue this year is clearly defined and on the question of protection vs. free trade the contest will be "one sided" and the verdict overwhelmingly in favor of protection for American enterprise and American labor.

"The Mention of Blaine."

The Boston Traveller calls attention to the chatter in the Democratic papers about Mr. Blaine and now pretends to regard it as an indication that they want him nominated. If our esteemed contemporary is looking about for an explanation of the Democratic policy we would commend a perusal of the files of the Traveller some time last fall when that paper said:

The desperate condition of the Democratic canvass is manifest when we consider the means resorted to that Lovering may have a good vote. The last wail from the camp is on account of the outbreak of enthusiasm at Republican meetings whenever Mr. Blaine has been referred to in any way. It is true that nothing is more natural in discussing the un-American policy of Mr. Bayard concerning our fishery rights, than to mention Mr. Blaine's characteristics in contrast. Senator Hoar was the first to express the wish for "fifteen minutes of Blaine" to settle a dispute that has dragged for years, and is now by Bayard turned over to a nondescript commission.

It is also true that the name of the great leader of 1884 is always received with the wildest enthusiasm, and will wake up the deadest Republican meeting anywhere, even in the city of Worcester. The party of the "smelling committee" have given publicity to this underlying Blaine feeling to drive the Mugwumps back into the fold. Thinking that the Mugwump hatred of Blaine will overcome their contempt of Lovering, they are now in the last straits trying to find out the value of a name as a political scare. It is possible that the name of Blaine may be mentioned quite frequently in the future as in the past. Life has its bitter doses in store for Mugwumps.

The Traveller did not regard the frequent "mention of Blaine" in the Democratic organs as indicating a desire for his renomination at this time, and it would be interesting to know just why it places a different interpretation upon Democratic comments now than it did only a few months ago.

Republican Sentiment.

The Aroostook Herald, commenting upon the conventions held in this city, says:

The State and Fourth Congressional District Conventions at Bangor last Thursday were largely attended and unusually harmonious.

In the District Convention, Hon. C. A. Boutelle, our present able and faithful Representative in Congress, was nominated by acclamation for re-election and it goes without saying that the nomination will be indorsed by the people by an overwhelming majority.

In the State Convention there were nearly 800 delegates present. After conversing with gentlemen from all parts of the State, assembled there, we were thoroughly convinced that Aroostook's candidate, Hon. Edwin C. Burleigh, was the choice of a large majority of the Republicans of Maine and that he will be nominated on first ballot on the 12th day of June cannot be doubted. The State Committee have changed the time of holding the gubernatorial convention from Thursday, June 28th, to Tuesday, June 12th, and now let Aroostook see to it that a full delegation from every town and plantation be sent to Portland bearing the Burleigh banner.

Are the Best Lobsters Sold in Bangor, so They all Say, that have tried them. Our trade is more than double what it was last season. We are cooking from 20 to 40 barrels a day. Please read what some of our customers say that are using them.

We are using Jones' Steamed Lobsters, and find them the very best we ever used.—M. J. ROACH, Manager Bangor House.

Jones' Steamed Lobsters are giving us perfect satisfaction. We cannot recommend them too highly.—WINDSOR HOTEL.

We think Jones' Steamed Lobsters are far ahead of all others, and we shall use no others in the future.—FRED JOHNSON, Restaurant, Mercantile Square.

We are using Jones' Steamed Lobsters and find them very satisfactory. They are the best we ever used.—BUSWELL & JACQUES, Restaurant, Mercantile Square.

We think Jones' Steamed Lobsters are superior to all others, and we shall continue to use them.—W. B. JOHNSON, Proprietor Penobscot Exchange.

We consider Jones' Steamed Lobsters very nice and much better than lobsters boiled in the old way.—A. W. THAYER, Proprietor Bangor Exchange.

Jones' Steamed Lobsters are the best, and we can recommend them to everybody.—J. G. YOUNG & CO., Restaurant, Main Street.

On account of our steam apparatus not working as it should, the first few lots we cooked the early part of the season did not give satisfaction, but we have had it all changed over, and it is now working perfectly. We should like those that had some of them at that time, to try them now. We will warrant that they will suit you. We are receiving compliments every day on our lobsters from ... and all parts of the country where we ship them.

FIFTIETH CONGRESS—First Session.

Senate

WASHINGTON May The Senate passed the House joint resolution to enable the President to extend to certain inhabitants of Japan a suitable recognition of their humane treatment of the survivors of the American bark Cashmere

The consideration of the railroad land forfeiture bill was then resumed

The railroad land forfeiture bill went over until to-morrow

The House bill to restore to public domain part of the Uintah Valley Indian reservation in Utah was taken from the Calendar and passed with some verbal amendments

The Senate then resumed consideration of the bill to provide for the Bureau of Animal Industry to facilitate exportation of live stock and products and to extirpate pleuro pneumonia, and was addressed by Mr Reagan in opposition

Mr Vest made an amendment providing that the owner of cattle or any person having charge of the same shall have reasonable notice of the time when and the place where an appraisement shall be made and be permitted to make proof of the value of his cattle also providing that the board its agents and servants shall have no authority to exercise their powers within the limits of State stock yards cars or vessels without first obtaining consent of the corporation or of the executive authority of the State

Mr Coke argued against the bill and it went over without action

The Senate went into executive session and adjourned

House

The following bills were introduced and referred

By Mr Townsend of Illinois appropriating $50,000 for the erection in Washington of a statue of Major Gen Hancock

By Mr Plumb, of Illinois directing the Secretary of the Treasury to use any money now in the Treasury or which may hereafter accumulate therein applicable for the payment of the public debt, for the payment of the 4 and 4½ per cent bonds at par and accrued interest

By Mr McKenney, of N H for the erection of public buildings at Rochester and Summersworth N H

Mr Blanchard of Louisiana moved to suspend the rules and pass the River and Harbor bill

Several amendments have been incorporated in the bill since it was last before the House

The preliminary vote on seconding the motion to suspend the rules, resulted yeas 153 nays 14 a majority of the opponents of the bill refraining from voting A half hour debate then commenced

Mr Sowden of Pennsylvania did not think the Democratic House was justified in making the extraordinary appropriations carried by the bill He queried whether the President, pledged to an honest, economical administration of the government would approve the measure There had never been a more wasteful piece of legislation before Congress He called upon the gentlemen who opposed the Direct Tax bill to vote against this extravagant measure

The motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill was agreed to—161 to 69

No quorum voted

The House then adjourned

MR. SHERMAN IN OHIO

He Declines to Contribute to the State League

NEW YORK, May 7 A special from Cincinnati says Judge Calwell President of the Ohio State League of Republican Clubs some time ago wrote to Senator John Sherman asking for a donation to assist in defraying the expenses of the League Mr Sherman has replied, declining to contribute anything and giving as his reason the fact that the campaign expenses were too large This is not believed to be the real reason It is thought there is too much Blaine sentiment in the Ohio League to suit the Senator and this fact is the real reason for his unwillingness to make a donation

VERMONT

Verdict in a Contested Will Case

ST ALBANS, May 7. The Foster will case, on trial for four weeks, was concluded to-day by a verdict against the contestant The case involved $30,000, the main part of which was bequeathed by the testatrix, Mrs. Catharine Foster, of St Albans, to Mrs. Julia Hayes and daughter Minnie, of New York, at whose home Mrs Foster was at the time of her death Mrs Foster was regarded insane at times and the will was contested by J. D. Shafter and Della S. Dickinson, relatives, of New York, on the grounds of mental incapacity and undue influence. There was a multitude of witnesses on each side and thirteen lawyers were engaged. The case will be carried to the Supreme Court.

Women Lay Delegates Refused Admission.

NEW YORK, May 7 Bishop Hinde presided at to-day's session of the Methodist General Conference Secretary Moore made an official announcement of the death of Rev Dr. Charles G Clarke, of Portland, Maine, one of the secretaries of the Conference and of Lay Delegate Leavitt Bates of the New England Southern Conference Committees were appointed to draft resolutions of regret

The debate on the admission of women as lay delegates was continued. Forty-one delegates at once sprang to their feet and claimed the floor Rev H H Moore, of the Erie Conference, was recognized and spoke in favor of admitting women

Rev J T Edwards of the Detroit Conference and editor of the Northwestern Advocate, opposed their admission at the present time and favored the submission of the question to a vote of the church

A number of others spoke pro and con on the subject.

When the debate on the eligibility of women as lay delegates closed to-day, a vote was taken on the adoption of Rev David Moore's substitute for the report of the committee It is proposed that women elected as lay delegates to the present general conference be seated and the question of their eligibility in the future be determined by a vote of the church and the annual conferences This substitute was lost Then a vote was taken upon the amendment to the report offered by Rev Dr Neeley of Philadelphia This amendment excludes women from seats in the present conference and submits the question of their eligibility to future general conferences It was adopted by a vote of 240 ayes to 173 nays

A WONDERFUL STORY.—THIRTEEN YEARS A SUFFERER CURED WITH BELL'S SARSAPARILLA

Woolwich, Me, March 29, '88

I have been troubled with scrofula thirteen years I have taken different kinds of sarsaparillas and blood purifiers, but only received temporary relief Six months ago this terrible humor was spread from my ankle to my hip, and I had given up all hope of getting well I was advised by my daughter to try Bell's Sarsaparilla I have taken five bottles and can say that I have received more benefit from it than all the other medicines The humor is all healed up and my health is greatly improved I can highly recommend Bell's Sarsaparilla to all who are troubled with impure blood

MRS. SARAH E TAYLOR

Superior to every other kind Popular to price, Bell's Sarsaparilla is wonderful for all blood diseases Only 50 cents per bottle d&wlw my5

NEVER HEARD OF "DAVY CROCKETT'S COON?"

That's queer! Well, it was like this Col. Crockett was noted for his skill as a marksman One day he leveled his gun at a racoon in a tree, when the animal, knowing the Colonel's prowess, cried out, "Hello, there! Are you Davy Crockett? If you are, I'll just come down, for I know I'm a gone coon." Just take a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and see how quickly your biliousness and indigestion will emulate the example of "Davy Crockett's coon," and "climb down" They are specifics for all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

LECTURE AT THE Y. M. C. A

By Dr D A Robinson on "Emergencies

The lecture by Dr. D A Robinson, which was postponed from one week ago, was delivered last evening at the Y. M. C A rooms before a large and select audience The ladies having been invited availed themselves of the opportunity to learn of 'Emergencies, and what to do until the doctor comes " The lecture was instructive and entertaining and all regretted that it was not longer The President of the Association, Mr G W E Barrows presided, and in a few well chosen words introduced the lecturer

The importance of the subject to all was first dealt with It is especially important that policemen and the militia should know what to do in emergencies as they are constantly liable when on duty to be suddenly called upon to act The first requisite in the case of accident is to keep perfectly cool and see what you can do to assist The subject of fainting was discussed at length and numerous instances were introduced Do not throw water in the face The head should be raised and gently bathed

In the case of a sunstroke remove to a shady place and pour a constant stream of cold water on the head till the doctor comes The remedies to be applied to burns and scalds are numerous Anything that will exclude the air such as flour, starch sweet oil or even ... may be used Bleeding at the nose and lungs were next explained and immediate remedies suggested The bleeding of wounds and the remedies to be applied was a particularly interesting portion of the lecture In the case of poison from a bite you must act at once Do not be afraid to suck the wound, as no injurious effect will follow the mouth may be rinsed with water or vinegar

Fruit is considered ... that there is no danger of intoxication A dog should never be killed after biting a person as the dog may not have been rabid and the person will be in suspense perhaps for months Until the dog is ... he is mad Drowning was discussed and the practice of rolling on a barrel was deprecated

At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks was extended to the Doctor for his instructive talk

This closes the course of lectures and the Association and the large audiences have reason to feel grateful to the Secretary Mr Jordan for his arrangement of a course which was calculated to instruct rather than to amuse

The Schools

In looking over some back numbers of THE WHIG after a few days absence I was especially pleased with an item speaking of the donation of photographs by the senior class of the High School for the decoration of the walls of their recitation rooms It is pleasant to see a sentiment of public spirit developing itself so early It is pleasant also to see it taking so wise a direction In these days when matters of taste are rising into such prominence as a part of all true education and it is beginning to be felt how much we as a people should gain if our eyes were opened to the marvels of beauty in art and in nature it is fitting that our school rooms should be made as tasteful and as beautiful as possible and as the city fathers do little or nothing to that end it is pleasant to know that the young people are taking the matter in hand and are disposed to do what they can to repair the deficiency They will get the benefit of it—they and their successors It is well that beautiful things should always be before the eyes of the children that they should be led to look at them and feed upon them Who can tell how much the constant sight of one simple work of art may do towards developing a susceptibility to the beautiful and even a capacity for creating beautiful forms on the part of some child in whom otherwise the faculty might have lain dormant all his life

In this connection I would like to express the strong hope which I know I share with multitudes of others, that the slight training in music which has been given in our schools should not be discontinued but if possible be made more extensive I can remember hearing Dr Channing in my youth contending in a public address for the making music a permanent part of public school education and maintaining that there was no other acquisition which touched our nature on so many sides and so beneficent It did something toward providing the children with a life long source of enjoyment—it cultivated the taste—and especially he maintained that it was a most powerful instrument of moral culture It was not only in the days of Saul that music drove away the bad spirits it is an attribute of it in all times and in all lands A person cannot well cherish a bad passion when under the influence of music—jealousy envy, spite grumbling, all disappeared when a man sang a good song It is a pity that an exercise which carries so many benefits with it, should (for the sake of a few hundred dollars) be banished from the public schools of a city, so noted for the free generous, openhanded use of its money

Bangor cannot expect to compete with many cities of our country in population or in wealth in astuteness and splendor of its private or its public buildings There are higher particulars in which it can compete with them The compliment which that accomplished scholar—President Woods—bestowed upon it as a city of higher culture than any other city of its size of which he knew (a compliment that infinitely outweighs the taunts about us which some narrow minded and uncultivated persons have published to the world) is worth much more than any compliment based upon wealth or population If we ever had a claim to such preeminence, we ought to cherish a generous ambition to hold on by it And one way to do so is to gather round our schools as well as our homes every possible element of taste and of culture

The Late William H Genn

Our Bucksport correspondent writes The funeral of the late William H. Genn was held from the family residence on Main street Sunday afternoon. A large number of relatives and immediate friends and neighbors gathered to bring affection's last tribute to a loved relative, a trusted friend and an honored and respected citizen. The services were conducted by Rev. William Forsyth, pastor of the Elm street Congregational church.

Mr. Genn was born in Bucksport on the same street on which he died in 1817, and was consequently seventy-one years old. He was one of the leading shipbuilders of the town, having built or had charge of building over forty vessels, among which were the ship John Knox, the ship N. T. Hill and the bark Penobscot. The last vessel he built was the barkentine Arlington. While for the past few years no shipbuilding has been done yet he has ever been busy in some line of effort, and although he had arrived at the age when the eyes of most men begin to dim and when the step begins to lose its accustomed elasticity, yet with him the eye was never darkened nor the step ever relaxed its accustomed vigor. He was of a generous and open-hearted nature yet one who despised display of great deeds, and many are the poor families who can attest to the liberality of his charity when not even his best friend knew that it had been bestowed. He leaves a wife four sons and a daughter, all of whom were with him during his sickness Two of their children, Albert H Genn, Esq, and Fred H, reside in town, and the others in the West, where they are to return Tuesday

AMUSEMENTS

Ullie Akerstrom

A large audience was very pleasantly entertained last evening at the Opera House by Miss Ullie Akerstrom, with a good company in 'Renah, the Gypsy's Daughter and the bright actress received a hearty welcome Miss Akerstrom has always been well received here in the past and her reception last evening showed that she has not been forgotten since her last appearance here She made a very pleasing impression in the character of 'Renah, which she assumed with sprightliness and ease Her dancing was an interesting feature and was accomplished with much grace and skill Well deserved applause was given Miss Akerstrom at several points of the play

Mr Varney as Bertram had the most of the part and did some effective acting Mr Duane created much amusement in the role of Charbot and his acting expression and make up were well calculated to produce this effect The other parts were well taken and the play gave excellent satisfaction The scenery was very good and the playing of the orchestra was an excellent feature of the evening's entertainment

PLUCK

BY JOHN STRANGE WINTER,

Author of "Cavalry Life," "Bootles' Baby," "Houp-La," "A Man of Honor," Etc.

And Harkness certainly did see that night a good many things, but not the one that Lucy intended him. He saw that Olive was looking lovely, that she was evidently almost the victim of Tony Hartog's admiration; that she was quite as evidently intensely relieved when the time came for her to dance with him. Not being a particularly conceited man he never suspected for a moment that he, of all men on the face of this wide earth, occupied the place which he had always believed to be filled by Lucy.

"I do think you are treating her badly," he said, when they were smoking a pipe together after it was all over.

"Badly—I?" echoed Lucy, in astonishment.

"Well, perhaps not badly, but in a hard, inconsiderate kind of way—never going near her, or asking her to dance, or anything. All girls like a little attention at an affair like this."

"I did ask her," Lucy returned. "And she —well—not pwrecisely wrefused me, but she told me she had only one left—the last; and then, she added, she didn't think they would be staying so late. Of course I thanked her and came away."

"And didn't take it?"

"Oh, no, what was the good? I—ar—took the hint instead," with a miserable attempt at indifference.

Harkness shook his head solemnly.

"Poor little soul! She might well look so bored as she did at times. You should have asked her early in the evening, and not have left her alone till an ass like D'Albiac, or a bumptious idiot like Carnegie, had had a chance of boring her into giving them dances."

"If she had wanted to give me one, she would have kept same," Lucy persisted.

"I know she had one vacant at supper-time—the fourteenth," Harkness asserted.

"Oh, yes, I know; but I was engaged to Lady Mawry for that, and I couldn't possibly thwrow Lady Mawry over."

"Oh, well, if she kept one, you couldn't really, under the circumstances, expect more than that. How fearfully hot the ballroom was. Never danced in such a hot room in all my life. Positively, once or twice I thought my tunic must have choked me."

"Yes, it was vewry hot," Lucy agreed.

"What an ass D'Albiac is!" Harkness went on, cheerfully. "It always seems to me such a piece of presumption—not to say confounded impudence—for a fellow who dances what he calls 'deux temps,' and looks like a sausage caporing about by electricity, or a marionette, or something of that kind, to go taking up the waltzes of the best partners in the room. I asked Miss Weyland what she thought of him. She admitted that she did not consider him exactly a cheerful sort of fellow."

"'By the by, what did you talk about?' said I.

"'Oh, I said the room was full,' she answered.

"'And then?' I asked.

"'I said it was warm,' she told me.

"'And then?'

"'Oh, then; oh, I fell back on the theatres, and asked him if he'd seen Mme. Tussaud's lately.'"

"By Jove!" Harkness continued, with a laugh. "'Mme. Tussaud's must have been quite a godsend. It's my opinion old D'Albiac will be having a fit, or an attack of paralysis, before long. He's loft too much to go his own way since Bootles left the regiment. Bootles used to act upon him like a mustard poultice on an inflammation—on the counter-irritant principle, you know."

"Yes," returned Lucy, absently.

"Well, I'm going to turn in now. Good night, old fellow; or, rather, good morning, for it is only a quarter to six."

"Good night," said Lucy.

At that moment Olive Weyland was just getting into her pretty, white-curtained bed, so blissfully happy that sleep seemed miles away from her. She never tried even to close her eyes, but lay wide awake during the rest of the night, thinking over it all. How gentle and tender and considerate he had been! How big and brave and honest he was! Poor Olive! If she had only known the truth, that Harkness had but looked after her because Lucy was the friend of his heart, and he hoped one day to see her Lucy's wife.

CHAPTER VII.

OLIVE'S VALENTINE

Oft expectation fails, and most oft there
Where most it promises; and oft it hits
Where hope is coldest, and despair most fits.
—All's Well that Ends Well.

Ah Love!
Perjured, false, treacherous Love!
Enemy
Of all that mankind may not rue!
Most untrue
To him who keeps most faith with thee.
Woe is me!
The falcon has the eyes of the dove,
Ah Love!
Perjured, false, treacherous Love!
—The Spanish Student.

The month of January passed over, but Olive Weyland's bliss did not lessen, and nothing happened to make the true state of Harkness' feelings clear to her.

During the first week in February, however, he went up to town on a two days' leave—a fact which Olive learned while at a large reception near Gaystown, to which she had gone solely because she expected that he would be there.

Lucy was in the room when she and her mother entered, as also was D'Albiac. Now, D'Albiac, although a very great admirer of Miss Weyland, was not a man of brilliant conversational powers, and, as a general rule, when holding intercourse with a lady, was, if not very liberally helped out, apt to stick fast. On that occasion he managed to get possession of a seat next to her, but Olive was not inclined to talk. Consequently, Mr. D'Albiac very soon relapsed into silence; and Olive, while apparently attending very closely to the music which was going on at that moment, was trying hard to hear a conversation which went on in whispers, or at least in an undertone, just behind her.

"Oh, but Harkness is going to leave," she heard Lucy say.

"Yes; but to be married." That was the voice of the colonel's wife.

"I haven't heard anything about his being marwried," said Lucy.

"No! Oh, but you have been away ten days, have you not? I assure you it is quite true, the colonel told me this morning. It was this way: when my husband heard he was going to leave, he told him he supposed he meant to settle down, and so on. Capt. Harkness went very red, and said he should announce it formally as soon as the day was fixed."

"Never heard a bwreath of it before," Lucy declared, decidedly. "Fancy old Harkness going to be marwried! Positively thewre won't be a single bachelor left in the wregiment before long. Why, at the wrate we are going on, I shall have the whole mess to myself long before Mignon grows up into a marwriageable young lady. But wreally—er—I can hardly cwredit the news that Harkness is going to be marwried."

Olive accepted the news as absolutely true at once. He was going to be married! She sat just where the blow had fallen upon her, although the people moved to and fro and changed places on all sides of her. Men of all ages, professions and appearance came and spoke to her; but Olive, with the faithful D'Albiac still by her side, stayed just where she was until her mother rose to take leave.

She heard the music, listened to a variety of more or less valueless remarks, and gave answer to them. She assured D'Albiac she was not in the least degree faint. She bade adieu to the lady of the house, and went into the dining room for a cup of coffee before they left—all to the echo of four words—"Going to be married."

What four terrible words they were! They formed themselves into a sort of sing-song chant, and regularly beat themselves into her brain—"Going to be married—going to be married!"

My pen will hardly describe the bitter night which Olive passed. Oh, the sad tears which fell upon her pillow for the end of all her hopes—the pain of wounded pride, for the horrible realization of the truth that she had been slighted, passed over for another.

"If only," she cried, passionately, to herself in the midst of her tears, "if only she had not said nay to Cecil Lucy—if only she had not rejected the honest love which he had offered her!"

He would never ask her again now, of course; she knew him too well ever to hope that. She knew that although it was almost impossible to offend him, yet that, once really angered, it was almost as impossible to put things right with him.

If she had but known it, three lines on a sheet of note paper would have brought him to her side, if not with the rapidity of a flash of lightning, certainly as fast as the four good legs of his best horse could carry him. Pride, anger, offended dignity—pooh! He had no pride where she was concerned; anger would have melted at her smile, like a snow wreath before the heat of an August sun; and as for offended dignity—why, what was all the dignity in the world, whether it happened to be offended or not, in comparison with the treasure of Olive's promise! But Olive knew nothing of this; and so the wretched night passed over in doing nothing.

"Going to be married."

The day, which broke cold and gray upon a chilly world, was the 13th of February. After some two hours' fitful, broken and uneasy slumber Olive opened her eyes, and, as might be expected, with a racking headache.

Her first thought was to tell her maid that she would remain in bed, but second thoughts said: "No; get up."

After her cup of tea she decided to go for a ride, just as a means of getting away by herself, and also to do away with the ill effects of a bad night. For she was determined to hide by every means in her power the fact that she either had a headache or had passed a bad night, lest any one—she did not define in her own mind who the "any one" might be—should put two and two together, and connect her indisposition with Capt. Harkness' marriage.

Thereupon, immediately after breakfast, she left Copplethwaite on a tall, gray horse, and took the road to Gaystown. After going a mile or so, she met Hartog and Lucy out for their morning ride together. Of course Hartog pulled up his horse, and equally, of course, Lucy could not do otherwise; though, if he had been alone, he would simply have saluted and passed on. As it was, they turned back with her, and the three rode slowly toward the town, Olive in the midst.

She did not, however, go more than a mile farther. It was not very pleasant, for Hartog talked a great deal, and Lucy very little; so presently Olive drew rein, and said she had come far enough.

WARREN'S COUGH BALSAM,

THIS IS AN OLD AND RELIABLE REMEDY
For Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, Diphtheria, etc.

It was originally prepared by the advice and under the supervision of one of the most skillful physicians of the country. From the very first it took high rank among the specifics for those diseases, and ever since it has been growing in favor with the people and the medical profession, as the large number of testimonials in our possession will show. It is pleasant to take and affords quick relief. We offer it to the public, confident that it has no equal for the purposes for which it is commended.

DECORATIVE ART.

Having acquired the proprietorship of a new and beautiful process of decorating walls, panels, ceilings, pottery, or in fact, any surface desired, I now desire to extend the practice of the method, and to that end am prepared to sell rights for Bangor, Brewer and Orrington. The work is extremely simple and can readily be done by any intelligent person. This is an exceptional opportunity for bright young men desiring an employment at once light, pleasant and profitable. I will instruct any person purchasing the exclusive right for any of the towns mentioned, so that they may go to teaching and selling individual rights at once. The work is exceedingly inexpensive, and its beauty, together with its manifest superiority over any other paint, recommends it at once. Those interested and the public generally, can see samples of the work at 75 Pickering Square.
